

Doing your best work from wherever you work

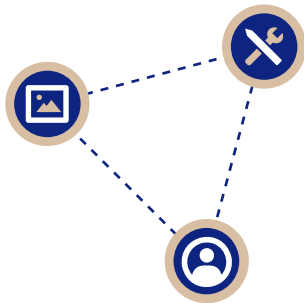

In 2018, 56%¹ of businesses were allowing remote working.

Today, it's the norm. But how robust are your organisation's collaborative working habits?

According to our State of Collaboration research², you've probably got some work to do...

Business and IT leaders recognise improving collaboration is business critical.

84%

of decision makers believe the overall success of their business depends on reinventing the way teams collaborate

Remote working requires the right balance of technology and culture – and both are being tested to the max by current events.

93%

are facing challenges when it comes to improving collaborative working, including:

36%

Culture/
employee attitudes

31%

Difficulties staying in sync

25%

Connectivity of apps, tools and content

23%

Physical location

21%

Availability of collaborative tools

Barriers to collaboration can reduce productivity, employee satisfaction, and team communication.

37%

say productivity has suffered

34%

report that employee satisfaction has been impacted

34%

say communication across teams has suffered

In these uncertain times, a unified workspace – connected content, tools and teams – could be the answer.

84%

believe investment in such a workspace will improve the way employees collaborate internally and externally

At the office. Around the globe. And everywhere in between.

With Dropbox Business, everything your team needs is in one place. And it's instantly accessible wherever you are working.

¹ Owl Labs, 2018 Global State of Remote Work
<https://www.owlabs.com/state-of-remote-work/2018>